Vacancies: UEA Higher Education Men's Football Activator

Fixed term 10-month contract, required from Monday 18th September 2023 to Friday 14th June 2024.

Closing Date for applications: Friday 2nd June 2023 15:00

uea+sport seeks to employ up to four highly motivated Higher Education Men's Football Activators to drive participation opportunities for students to play football at the University of East Anglia.

- The aim will be to promote and deliver high quality introductory level participation programmes organised to generate and sustain interest in participation within the university.
- The driving factor behind all activities and competitions will be to facilitate an enjoyable participation experience with the intention of enabling participants to transition into the university club.

The successful candidates may have some football coaching experience, but it is not essential, as well as the ability to promote and administer these programmes and collect relevant monitoring and evaluation data. The role will focus on the participation side of football development, but this will also be part of an overall player pathway to progress and develop as appropriate and provide the necessary opportunities for players to maximise enjoyment and potential.

- You will need to be enthusiastic and committed to the delivery of quality, fun and effective football activities to inspire the next generation of players to want to choose football
- You will need to be able to develop relationships with key partners and participants alike.
- Candidates must demonstrate both team working skills and the ability to work unsupervised and on their own initiative.
- Excellent communication and IT skills will be expected.
- Applicants need to be willing to work some evenings and weekends as required. It is expected that most of the work will be conducted at the UEA campus.
